It is laughter in the pouring rain,
The hand that steadies when you hear the pain,
In the quick dinner, it is the shared cup of tea.
A life built together, as simple as can be.

It's the morning light; on the wrinkled face,
The moments of calmness, thriving in life's race,
It's the flight in the poverty, with a glance:
The courage to meet again with another chance.

It doesn't need to be grand or loud
It's found in the ordinary, beneath the crowd,
In every small gesture, in every kind deed,
It is the answer, that we all need!

Beautiful Cloud

Silently floating over, fair
Shroud to countless droplets,
Shrinks, expands in shrivelled air
In no time, as the blue sets.

Folks enthuse, while it's numb as frost
From the grief it watched while passing by;
Goes no trail, but still not lost
Spraying life with every mile.

Oh friend, is there no home, no place;
Where you could go to, once in a while
Lone traveller wearing that face
Fighting corrosion too, every mile.

Strolling aloft, yet so modest
Painting the sky, a pertinent blank
Off the hustle, a sight the best
A day's solace, when the sun sank
